The Brackets Omitted.

WHAT HAS COME OF AN ERROR MADE IN PRINTING A The New York Tribune to-day published a dispatch from Washington stating that it is expected that the Postmaster General will make some careful inquiries to ascertain, if practicable, whether any of the present subordinate officers of his department have been derelict in their official duties in respect to the lottery companies. The dispatch says that some color of probability is given to ru-mors that the late Postmaster General was deceived by subordinates respecting the legal status of the Louisiana lottery company by the fact that in the correspondence between Postmaster General Howe and Representative Robertson, of Louisiana, last year, two letters from the Post Office department contained what purported to be a citation of section 3,894 of the Revised Statutes. The first words of this section were quoted as follows: "No letter or circular concerning illegal lotteries, so-called gift concerts," &c., although that section has not since July 12, 1876, contained the word "illegal."

A reporter of THE STAR Was to-day shown both the record book and the copy book containing the letter above referred to, and saw that the word "illegal" was enclosed in brackets, just as it is in the statute which was quoted. The letter, as printed in the Congressional Record, omits the brackets and leaves the word "illegal" standing as a part of the statute. The reason that it is printed in the statute is in accordance with the custom of printing all changes in brackets, and this word was formerly in the statute.

NOT THE PRUD'HOMME ROBBERS.-Detective COX stated to a STAR reporter this afternoon that the published statement that the two alleged burglars, Logue and Burns, tailled with the description of the men who did the Prud'homme job, was utterly incorrect, for those men were young. Butler. The latter protested earnestly, saying too much time had already been wasted in arguing on Mr. Brown's objections. He hoped the legislature would allow the committee to go on at its letsure. The chairman reminded him that he, in a recent message to that body, had said the purposes of the investigation had been accomplished. The governor vigorously maintained his right to the remaining time, and finally left in rather an excited state, saying the committee could do as it pleased, but he would be heard elsewhere. It was then voted to close the evidence
